CHILDREN SAVED AT ATTIC FIRE

Baby Got Lungs Full of Smoke
When Overlooked by Neighbors
Who Rescued Two.

HAD TO BREAK DOWN DOOR

Fire Started Either By Children or Mice.

Shortly after 6 o'clock Wednesday evening neighbors noticed smoke pouring out of an attic window of the dwelling house at No. 200 Tremont avenue and running into the house they found their way to the attic by a broken door which was broken down and two of the three small children were carried out. George A. McGinnis, who lay in a crib, was overlooked in the excitement and was not rescued until the arrival of the fire department in response to a still alarm of fire. The baby was found suffering from smoke inhalation and Dr. Frederick Holcomb was called and administered first aid. This morning it was stated that the baby was out of danger.

Mr. McGinnis had left the house early to go to a garage after an automobile, and his wife left shortly afterward to meet him, leaving the three small children alone in the house which has been fitted up as living apartments.

Two girls named Pfommer residing on Elmwood street were the first to observe the smoke issuing from the attic window and alarmed other neighbors.

According to the report of the fire made at the Central Fire Station the little three year old girl, shortly after the parents had left, had secured some matches from her father's smoking stand and had lighted some papers in the kitchen sink.

Mr. McGinnis, however, informed The Freeman today that the fire was caused by mice.

The barrel caught fire and communicated to the window filling the room with a dense smoke.

Some one in the Central Fire Station when the firemen arrived there learned that there was still an attic child in the attic. The firemen rushed into the attic spraying chemicals on the fire and discovered the baby in the crib and carried the child downstairs while some one called Dr. Holcomb.

The damage to the attic was not heavy and the firemen soon had the flames under control.

The dwelling is owned by Henry Klein and is a two family house. The attic had been fitted up as a living apartment and the house was occupied by three families.

But for the timely discovery of the fire it is likely that all three children would have lost their lives.

SHOT IN BUSINESS STREET IN SYRACUSE.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Syracuse, N. Y., April 24.—Louis Spadara, 23, of 402 Lansing street, this city, was shot down in the heart of the business district at 12:15 a. m. yesterday and died 20 minutes later. Questioning before death failed to reveal from the victim the name of his slayer.

Police are looking for Jerry LaFrate, 840 Jay street, a suspect. The murderer escaped in a Buick touring car, racing through the city streets with a taxicab containing a night watchman and a detective in close pursuit. The murderer car succeeded in giving the slip to the taxi, however, and to trace of the murderer had been found early today.

John R. DeVany Died Today

At His Home In Ellenville—Was One of Best Known Lawyers In County and Enjoyed Large Practice.

John R. DeVany, for many years one of the best known lawyers of Ulster county, died at 1:30 o'clock this morning at his home at Ellenville.

Mr. DeVany was about sixty-five years old and was a native of Cortland county, N. Y. He was educated at the Cortland State Normal School to become a teacher, and thirty-nine years ago was called to become teacher at the Accord district school, various school districts of Ulster county at that time securing a number of Cortland Normal School graduates as teachers and principals.

After teaching school at Accord for three years, Mr. DeVany came to Kingston and studied law in the offices of the late Hon. Augustus Schoonmaker, and upon the completion of his studies there he was admitted to the bar. He opened an office at Walden and remained there only a short time, when he removed to Ellenville, where he has since resided.

About the time of his removal to Ellenville, Mr. DeVany married Lizzie Decker, a daughter of the late Moses Decker, who was a well known merchant of Accord, by whom he had three daughters, all of whom survive.

During his long term of practice, Mr. DeVany was one of the most active lawyers of the county. In former years he was more active in trial work than in his later years, but at all times he enjoyed a large and lucrative practice. In the trial of cases he displayed thorough preparation, full knowledge of the law applicable to his case, and great tenacity of purpose. He was well grounded in the principles of his profession, and had a keen and discriminating sense of the art of trial work.

For a number of years Mr. DeVany had not enjoyed good health and at times suffered from heart trouble. Recently he had gone to the Albany hospital for treatment but relief was only temporary. He returned to Ellenville and his death was expected for several days.

Mr. Worf is survived by his wife, two sons, Andrew and John Worf, and three daughters, Theresa, wife of Walter J. Fitzgerald; Helen, wife of Philip Peeney; and Elizabeth at home. Mr. Worf had been engaged in business on Abel street for many years and was well known. He had always taken an active interest in local freeman matters and served as a volunteer fireman for years. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Wallis Talks To Ulster C. E.

Immigration Great Problem of Today,
He Says, and Drags the Menace—
Hurley C. E. Local Won Prize—
State Secretary Also a Visitor.

The Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union held a conference in the chapel of the First Reformed Church on Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. Mr. Raschke, president of the county organization, presiding. This was followed by a dinner at the Advance Restaurant, where over 80 Endeavorers, from county and city unions, enjoyed a delicious repast, seasoned with songs and stories and anecdotes.

In the evening at 8 o'clock there was a general meeting in the First Reformed Dutch Church, when the chief speaker was Commissioner of Corrections Frederick A. Wallis of New York city and president of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union. The devotional exercises were in charge of the pastor of the church, the Rev. Mr. Howe. The state organization had offered a prize for the local C. E. sending the largest delegation to this conference, and the prize, a book entitled "The Evolution of an Endeavorer," was assigned to the Hurley C. E. having 15 delegates.

After the singing of C. E. hymns, Mr. Raschke introduced the "social and efficient secretary of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union," Carlton Sherwood of New York, who told of the coming state convention in Utica the last week-end in June and described the program for the same in glowing colors and at some length, before introducing Commissioner Wallis, whom he said had given up some very lucrative engagements this week in order to make addresses before C. E. Unions and conferences in this part of the state. Commissioner Wallis is delivering addresses in evening, and returning to New York in time to assume his official duties there during the day, a most strenuous program. Considering the character of the commissioner's address and what he would have liked to tell his audience, it was most unfortunate that there were so many preliminaries that his time of speaking was greatly shortened since he had to take the last train for Albany.

Mr. Wallis was evidently greatly impressed with the ecclesiastical beauty of the church which he was visiting for the first time and said he counted it an exalted privilege to stand in the sacred desk of the old historic church, so worshipful and beautiful in every way that even without a service, he was sure, one could find real communion with his Lord. He also spoke appreciatively of the historic background of Kingston which must also be an inspiration for its future.

He said he had been asked to speak on the subject of "Immigration," under the caption, "The Challenge of the Hour; the Need of the Day."

Speaking of woman's place in the world today, Commissioner Wallis said the great war disclosed the fact that woman not only possesses great power of love, of compassion, of sympathy, but she showed and continues to show great brain power, keen intellectual acumen and ability. As jurors, Mr. Wallis felt that, intuitively deriving underneath the surface appearance of things, woman would prove to be the equal to any man in that task. It is a woman though blindfolded—and the speaker thought she could see more even so than most men—who is represented as Justice, holding the scales of judgment in her hands. If men are the pillars of the church he thought that the women were the bricks. When asked "What would the nation be without woman," he said he was obliged to answer, "Stagnation."

Today woman is working side by side with man in every walk of life, and strengthening and beautifying and uplifting those walks of life by her presence therein. She is new in the field of politics and will be criticized for such mistakes as she will make, but the commissioner admitted that she had been made to match man, and he said he had noticed that where there were no mistakes there usually was no progress. This whole nation needs woman's influence as never before.

Going into the subject of immigration which the speaker counted as the problem of the day as drug addiction is the menace of the day, he told how when he was commissioner at Ellis Island it was always his custom at the Sunday afternoon concerts given for the countless numbers of foreign born to open the meeting with a reading from the Bible, often in many languages; especially from the Old Testament to the Jews of the old countries. And then there would be a prayer, also in many tongues, for he fully intended that those of foreign birth coming to our shores would immediately be given to understand that the foundations of our country-keep faith with Almighty God, perpetually glorifying the name of Jesus Christ.

Commissioner Wallis said that 1924 was going to be a great year in the history of our land, a year in which we will have to decide whether we shall have the law enforced or shall feel the force of the law; a year when right and might must do battle; light and darkness struggle for supremacy; when there will be a titanic grapple between slippery expediency and the operation of law, order, right-mindedness. And the members of every Christian Endeavor Society, whether of county, state or nation, regardless of party affiliations must take their stand on the side of truth and honesty; the

Man Electrocuted At Ellenville

In the village of Ellenville, Tuesday afternoon Thomas Francis McConnell, aged 20 years, was electrocuted while at work for the New York Telephone Company.

McConnell was employed as an installer by the company and working on a pole along one of the main streets in Ellenville. Just how he came in contact with a live wire was not known as no one was (apparently) near him. He was seen to fall from the top of the pole. He was carried to the office of a doctor where the marks of severe burns on both hands and on the sole of the right foot, proved the cause of the fall. The doctor worked over him for some time in an unsuccessful effort to revive him.

The deceased was born in Hudson and last summer entered the employ of the New York Telephone Company as an installer in the Hudson district. He was quick to learn and very industrious and soon became a valued employee and when the call came for an installer he was transferred to the division which worked in this district, where he had since been stationed. The body was taken to his home in Hudson on Tuesday evening. He was a son of the late Joseph and Eleanor McConnell of Hudson. The surviving relatives are three sisters, the Misses Catherine, Eleanor and Anna, and two brothers, Joseph and John, all of Hudson.

Secreto Jailed For Six Months

Lanone Case Submitted to Jury at Noon Today—Criminal Matters of Term Concluded and Jurors Are Excused.

In county court Wednesday afternoon, Fred Secreto, indicted for grand larceny, entered a plea of guilty to a violation of section 1308 of the Penal Law, a lesser crime. His plea was accepted and Judge Fowler sentenced him to six months in the county jail.

The Lanone trial was continued and at noon today the case was submitted to the jury. Lanone, a resident of Saugerties, where he has a shoe shop, is indicted for taking gas from the Saugerties Gas Company without it passing through a meter. It is alleged that after he had the gas company take out his gas meter he altered the pipes in such a manner that he could take gas to operate a gas stove in his shop. Gas company employees, who were notified of the condition went to the shop where they found the store in operation.

This case concludes the trial of criminal matters at this term of court and all jurors were excused for the term.

Is Contention of Corporation Counsel Jenkins in Brief Setting Forth That a Recent Decision of the Appellate Division Limits Effect of City's Consent to Raise.

Under a recent decision of the appellate division of the supreme court for the Third department, the existing public service commission is without power to grant the application of the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company for an increase of fare, according to the contention of the city of Kingston as embodied in a supplemental brief filed today with the public service commission at Albany.

The city claims that the commission not only is without power to grant the present application for an increase in fare, but exceeded its authority when it granted the increase in fare from six cents to seven cents in 1920; that its authority to grant an increased fare ended when it granted the increase from five to six cents in 1919.

The first increase in fare, according to the supplemental brief filed with the public service commission by Judge James Jenkins, corporation counsel of the city, was authorized to meet a certain emergency, and he claims that authority never was given by the city to increase the fare from time to time indefinitely.

Judge Jenkins's supplemental brief filed with the public service commission, is as follows:
April 24, 1924.
Public Service Commission,
Albany, N. Y.

Re: In the Matter of the Application of Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company for increase of fares, etc.

Gentlemen: In view of a recent decision in the Third department herein referred to, I beg to add to my brief in the form of a supplementary letter, and call your attention to the following matters for your consideration:

The petitioner, the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company, operates under franchise obtained from the common council of the city of Kingston. The original franchise limited the fare to be charged to five cents. On or about the 4th of June, 1918, the common council of said city of Kingston adopted an ordinance providing that "the said company shall charge such fare for transporting any passenger as shall be established and determined to be just and reasonable by the public service commission of New York, after due hearing and investigation made, pursuant to and as provided by the public service commission law." No charge shall be made for any child under five years accompanied by parent, guardian or friend. Ununiformed policemen, when on duty, and firemen going to or coming from fires upon presenting badges shall ride free of charge.

Pursuant to said ordinance, application was made by the petitioner, Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company, before the public service commission. Second district, for an increase over the five cent fare provided for in the original franchise. On the first of April, 1919, an order was duly made by said commission allowing the petitioner herein to charge the maximum fare of six cents a passenger, and on July 21, 1920, another petition was made by the petitioner for a further increase and an order was made, December 23, 1920, fixing the maximum fare that petitioner could charge per person to seven cents.

POINT

The Force of the Amended Ordinance
Was Spent when the Public Service
Commission Fixed the Fare at Six Cents.

Under this ordinance, modifying the condition of the franchise of the common council providing that the company should charge "such fare as shall be established and determined to be just and reasonable by the public service commission of the Second district of the state of New York, the public service commission determined that six cents was a just and reasonable fare. The ordinance did not provide that the public service commission should determine from time to time the fare that should be just and reasonable. The common council had fixed five cents as the limit, it decided to have the public service commission review and determine whether five cents was just. The railroad paid the machinery into motion for such a determination and the public service commission having made a determination, the force of the ordinance was spent and there was no authority for further change of fare.

The ordinance of June, 1918, attempting to give the public service commission jurisdiction to determine a just fare, is limited to the public service commission of the Second district, as therein stated. It was by the common council of the city of Kingston that the suggestion of the petitioner of the railroad company to abandon its line on Washington avenue was suggested. The suggestion was that an increase in fare would relieve the

Bobbed Bandit Great Joker

New York, April 24.—What police characterize as Mrs. Celia Cooney's "wonderful nerves" nearly caused a riot in Raymond street jail, Brooklyn, early today, when the notorious bobbed bandit's jokes with women prisoners created such an uproar that matrons who were unable to quell it were forced to summon the warden.

Following the arraignment of Mrs. Cooney and her husband, Edward, yesterday, when they pleaded guilty to robbery in the first degree, the pair was remanded for sentence next Tuesday.

The gun girl was locked in alone with 29 other women prisoners who are awaiting trial. Women in adjoining cells began to whisper words of sympathy through the bars. They told her she was occupying the cell where Olivia Stone and Lillian Hazon were held while facing murder charges. The bobbed bandit laughed until tears coursed down her cheeks.

Then she "kidded" them for having exalted her, explaining that "while there was doubt about what was to happen to these two women, there's no doubt about what's going to happen to me." She then provoked the uproar by relating laughable incidents in her prison life.

The Cooneys are facing a sentence of from ten to fifteen years, but by the manner in which they assisted the court by prompt pleas of guilty it is popular belief they will receive the minimum sentence of ten years.

Alkali in Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you wish to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps, and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is a mild, permanent, oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonsful is sufficient to cleanse your hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair supple every member of the family for months.

BLOODSTAINED RELICS PRIZED

Clothes of Notables Valued Highly by Collectors.

The bloodstained coat reputed to have been worn by Lincoln when he was shot has apparently been discovered in two different places. It was sold in the Philadelphia auction rooms of St. V. Henkels to a Mr. Douglas for $6,500. But no sooner had the sale been accomplished than the Historical Society of Chicago rose to declare that Mr. Henkels could not have disposed of Lincoln's last suit, since the clothing in question was said to have lain in the show rooms of the society for years.

Both sets of garments are ostensibly authentic. Both are supported by a long line of gilded affidavits. One collector said, perhaps not in all seriousness, that the only possible conclusion to draw is that Lincoln was in the habit of wearing two suits at the same time.

Whatever happens to be the truth about the sartorial habits of Lincoln, he is not the only modern hero who is supposed to have worn two coats at once.

Relics of Queen Mary.
There are in existence today two cloaks, one blue and one tan, each reputed to have been worn by Wellington at Waterloo. Just as there has always been dispute and contention about the Holy Grail and the bones of the ancient saints, there is dispute and contention about the private possessions of saints and heroes of our own era. There is, however, this difference. The older relics went to the bravest warrior; the newer go to the highest bidder.

Bloodstained relics seem particularly prized. One of the most famous mementos of Mary Stuart is a spattered dress that was discovered at Holyrood at the end of the last century, concealed behind a tapestry in Mary's apartment. It is supposed to be the dress worn by Mary at the moment that her lover-adviser, Rizzio, was stabbed by George Douglas, and the blood is said to be Rizzio's blood.

In the Estemman museum, Derbyshire, there is "a small portion of the skin of Lord Darnley, a husband of Mary, Queen of Scots." Still another shows a morbid interest among relic hunters. Mary was beheaded in 1537, and her body was transferred in 1612 from Peterborough to Westminster. En route some one stole a handle off her coffin. "This elegant relic," said the Portfolio in 1822, "passed through many hands until in 1809 it was sold in the auction of Mr. W. Wilson."

Nelson's Bloodstained Coat.
Not all of the Mary Stuart relics are gruesome. At least one bears testimony of her warm and affectionate nature. It is a beautifully embroidered trinket which she gave to George Gordon, fourth Lord of Huntly, while she was in Paris. It is in the form of a cupid with his bow drawn and one foot poised on a heart transfixed by a dart. The heart bears the inscription, "Willingly wounded." The heart is connected by a skein of silk to a small ivory skull, to which is attached a lock of Mary's hair.

coat, which was used by an astute sovereign to win the favor of the English people.

Other Nelson Relics.

The coat was described in the Spectator of those days: "It is the address uniform of a vice admiral, lined with silk, with lace at the cuffs and epaulettes." And, to make it further valuable, "the coat and waistcoat are stained in several places with the hero's blood."

The interest in Nelson relics has extended to the Twentieth century. In 1901 a fresh group of them was presented to the Greenwich hospital by J. A. Mullens of Pirbright, Weybridge. His generosity elicited praise from Earl Nelson, which prompted the following words from Mr. Mullens:

"In handing to the museum at Greenwich the box in which the freedom of the city of London was presented to Lord Nelson and the sword hilt given him by the captains who fought at the Nile and to the United Service Institution the Copenhagen water cooler, and his fork and knife, I have done what every Englishman in my place would have been eager to do."

The Hair of Greatness.

Among the relic hunters, locks of the hair of famous people seem to rank next in popularity to bloodstained clothing. And there are certain heroes whose hair seems especially sought after. One collector says he has seen enough authentic Thackeray hair to stuff two mattresses.

In the Rosenbach collection there are locks from the scalps of Thackeray, Napoleon, Byron and Shelley, and one bright yellow curl from the head of Allegra, the daughter of Byron and Lady Claire Clairmont. Byron himself had a weakness for collecting such trophies, and one of his cherished possessions was a single hair from the head of Lucrezia Borgia, which was carefully mounted and marked with the inscription, "And beauty draws us by a single hair."

Napoleon's hat is regarded as a priceless relic. The cocked hat which we are wont to associate with Napoleon is a creation of his own. He wore quite small hats in the days when he was slim. But as he waxed portly his face broadened, and he had a theory—even Napoleon was not above petty vanities—that the larger his hats the smaller his face would seem.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, April 24.—The play, "A Poor Married Man," which was to have been given in the Grange Hall on Tuesday evening, April 29, has been called off.

The Easter cantata, which was given by the choir of the Reformed Church on Easter morning, was enjoyed by all present.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Teller of Walkkill and Mrs. Keator of Tilton spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. Sherman.

Melodious Instrumental

Orpheus in Hades—Overture—Part I Victor Symphony 35741 1.25

Orpheus in Hades—Overture—Part II Orchestra

One of the most brilliant of Offenbach's many overtures. Played by a full symphony orchestra, with all its gorgeousness of color and richness and accuracy of detail. A selection you probably know; a record you will want to own.

Light Vocal Selections

Fallen Leaf (V. Logan-F. Logan) Elsie Baker 45392 1.00

At Eventime (Twins-Grey) Elsie Baker

"Fallen Leaf" is an excellent example of the love-songs built musically on themes of the American Indian. "At Eventime" is a fine companion song. Both numbers are beautifully sung and recorded.

Lazy The Brox Sisters 19298 .75

Cover Me Up With the Sunshine of Virginia The Brox Sisters

First Victor Record by the Brox sisters, who have been singing in the Music Box Revue and elsewhere. The songs are big successes, and as usual the Victor presents them by the singers who "created" them for the public.

When Lights are Low Marcia Freer 19300 .75

What's To-day Got to Do With To-Morrow Peerless Quartet

The first a waltz song for a lovely contralto voice, the second a swinging fox-trot type with ringing vocal harmonies for four men's voices. Exceptionally fine popular numbers—and records.

(1) Who Knows (2) The Two Clocks (3) Cuckoo in the Clock (4) Fairies Anna Howard-Laura Littlefield 19272 .75

(1) Playmates (2) Robin's Prophecy (3) Breezes of the Night (4) Dancing Song Anna Howard-Laura Littlefield

Charming selections for two sopranos. Primarily made for educational purposes, but they are music more than pedagogy, and are delightful to listen to for their own sake.

Dance Records

What'll I Do—Waltz Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra 19299 .75

Lazy—Fox Trot

The first number will be especially welcomed, as Paul Whiteman has not recorded many waltzes. With "Lazy," a fox trot of the big sort, it makes a record that will become one of your dance favorites.

After the Storm—Fox Trot The Troubadours 19296 .75

Hula Lou—Fox Trot

"After the Storm" introduces a real storm with a ninety-mile wind and a vocal refrain with Clifford Cairns as soloist. "Hula Lou" introduces Frank Ferrera's Hawaiian guitar. Splendid numbers to dance to or just to hear.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

CHRISTIANITY IN CHINA.

The first general attempt to introduce Christianity into China dates from 79 years ago today, April 24, 1849, when the Chinese government, following the disastrous war with Great Britain, granted permission to foreigners to teach Christianity in China. Missionaries from many lands began immediately to flock to China, but in most places the "white devils" were received with hostility. The emperor, Tzou-Kwang, who in the latter part of his reign favored the introduction of European arts and religion, died in 1850, and his son, Emperor Hsien-Fung, adopted a reactionary policy. One of the odd results of the introduction of Christianity in China was the appearance in 1851 of a rebel leader who called himself "Tun-tan," and announced himself as a restorer of the worship of the true god, Shang-ti, and derived many of his dogmas from the Bible. He called himself the second son of God, and the brother of Jesus, and the monarch of all beneath the skies and demanded universal submission. His insurgent followers called themselves "Taiping," or "Princes of Peace," but the title was utterly denied by their atrocious deeds.

FIRST REGULAR U. S. PAPER.

The first number of the Boston News-Letter, the first newspaper to be regularly published on this date, April 24, 1704, with John Campbell, the postmaster as publisher. The first page of this number was occupied with a "scare story" based on letters from Scotland, in which it was set forth that "Papists swarm in the nation, that they traffick more avowedly than formerly, that of late many scores of priests and Jesuits are come hither from France, and gone to the north, the Highland and other places of the country." The publisher solicited subscribers from all "persons who have any houses, lands, tenements, farms, ships, goods, wares or merchandise to be sold or let—or servants run-away."

ELIZA WILKINSON.

Whose published letters give a lively and graphic account of the situation of the people and the event that occurred during that part of the War of the Revolution which was carried on in the section of the country in which she resided, was a daughter of Francis Yrge, a Welsh emigrant who had settled on Yrge's Island, about thirty miles from Charleston, South Carolina. She married Mr. Wilkinson, who died six months after their union, leaving her a young and beautiful widow.

She was noted for her wit and her kindness to the American soldiers.

KERHONKSON.

Kerhonkson, April 23.—On Monday evening of this week a large number of friends gathered in the basement of the M. E. Church to tender a surprise reception in honor of the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Churchill, who has returned from conference for another year. The reception was given by the people of the different churches in which he so faithfully labors, including Leibhardt, Accord, Krimphush and Kerhonkson. As the lights were turned out, they were all invited upstairs in the church, where a few social hours were spent. Then the organist played a march, the minister and his wife were ushered into the church amid the applause of the people. The minister stood in amazement, unable to express his gratitude, but the smile on his countenance, expressed his appreciation. Then the audience sang, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." Then they were again ushered in the dining room of the church, where dainty refreshments were served by

In Memory of Sailors

The black scarf worn by sailors in the United States navy is in memory of the seamen who died in previous wars. The four stripes woven in the edge of the scarf represent four great wars in which the American navy participated.

Mesopotamia

In the early history of the world Mesopotamia was an important, populous country. Certain small parts are naturally fertile, while the more arid regions were made to produce by good systems of irrigation. As the land of the country declined these systems fell into disuse and the country became more and more of a desert.

Basch Held For Grand Jury

Sam Basch of 22 Broadway arrested on a warrant on Tuesday, charged with grand larceny in the first degree obtained by Dudley A. Basch of Hollis, L. I., who alleged that Basch sold him a stolen automobile when complainant was a seaman on the Ritten dam, conversion was taken before Justice Henry E. McKeezie in the town of Sayes, Wednesday afternoon by Sergeant James Cunningham, and Basch released on bail in $500 to await the action of the grand jury.

Men Dive Into Icy Bay to Rescue Holy Relic

According to the picturesque custom of the Greek Orthodox church, 3,000 persons, mostly members of the Church of St. Nicholas at Cedar and West streets, marched to the Battery for the ritual of the cross in celebration of Epiphany as designated by the Greek calendar. While thousands filled the Battery park and lined the sea wall for a glimpse of the esoteric ceremony, eight men, acting for the congregation and demonstrating its willingness to sacrifice, plunged into the bay and rescued therefrom a golden figure of Christ on the cross.

The ceremony, an annual event in the Greek church, attracted such throngs that police reserves from the Marine division and the Old Slip station called on firemen from the fire boats tied up at the battery to help them establish lines to hold the curious in check. Hundreds were drawn to the scene by the long line of celebrants as they passed through the downtown streets and by the large band that accompanied it.

According to the Greek calendar, Epiphany, or twelfth night, fell on a week day. Members of the Church of St. Nicholas, applying for a permit to hold their ceremonies at the Battery, were told that because of heavy traffic in the bay it would be better if they could do so, to hold their celebration at Sunday.

This was done, and the congregation gathered at the church, where the line of march formed. When the 3,000 had gathered along the sea wall the Rev. Demetrios Bourazianis, pastor of the Church of St. Nicholas, after the prayers and the ritual of the service, threw a wooden cross with its figure of Christ out into the bay. The eight men dove in after it, and returned it to the priest. Only waiting to put their clothing on over wet bathing suits, they joined the procession back to the church.—New York Times.

Food for the Careless

A reader who was interested in the story of Mrs. John Corley, who was obliged to call "Fire, Fire!" in order to get her careless husband to chop wood for the kitchen stove, sends us this account of a somewhat similar incident:

My grandmother, she writes, used to tell about a cousin of hers whose husband also was careless about providing firewood. Like Mrs. Corley, the woman had managed to get along somehow, but there came a day when her patience became exhausted. It was in harvest, and she expected to have several extra men to dinner. Before her husband went to work she asked him as usual to cut some wood for her, and as usual he went out without doing it.

When the men came to dinner they found an astonishment at the table. It was set in the usual way, but nothing on it was cooked! At one end was a big pan of biscuit dough, and at the other was a platter of freshly-cut ham ready to fry. There were various other things on the table, such as raw potatoes and raw turnips. In a few words the woman explained that since she had no wood she had been unable to cook.

With one accord the hungry men started for the woodpile, and in a short time she had a steaming hot dinner for them. And never before had she had such a big pile of firewood!—Youth's Companion.

Next Thing to It

She had told the district charity "teller" a long story of her troubles and trials; no money, many mouths to feed, an idle, dissolute husband. She was very emphatic about the husband, who "knocked her about if she said a word."

"I am very sorry for you," said the visitor, "but always remember to return good for evil. Remember that a soft answer turneth away wrath. Meet his violence with gentleness, and in that way you will be heaping coals of fire on his head. Have you ever tried that?"

"Well, mum, not exactly," said the woman, "but I 'ave 'it 'im on the 'ead with a saucepan of boiling water."

Impossible

The teacher was trying to explain to her pupils the meaning of the word "impossible."

"What is it," she asked, "that carries a man along rough roads and smooth roads, up hills and down, through jungles and swamps and raging torrents?" There was silence, and then Tommy, whose father was an automobile dealer, spoke up. "Please, miss," he said, "there ain't no such car."—Youth's Companion.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 24, 1924.

"My oath was not to take a chance on the Constitution," said Mr. Coolidge when governor of Massachusetts. "It was to support it." The president conceives it to be part of his constitutional duty to protect the executive branch of the government from encroachment by the legislative, and he does not hesitate to act on that conception. His message to the Senate is not only strictly in accord with his own oath of office, but a reminder to that body that its members give glacial heed to their own oaths.

A conservative estimate places the number of Democratic aspirants for the presidency at thirty, but the early elimination of twenty-four of them is predicted in the first convention ballots, leaving only six survivors for the real contest. The final fight will be tremendous, leaving scores that will remain raw throughout the election campaign. From previous experience of the same sort, the Republicans know just how it feels. Their convention this year will be merely a ratifying affair, to record formally the nomination of Mr. Coolidge, already chosen by the state primaries, and to pick his running mate, who may be virtually decided upon before the convention meets.

Followers of McAdoo think the public has forgotten the revelation of his fee finding facilities and are plucking up courage again. Let them not be deceived. If Mr. McAdoo should be nominated and enter the election campaign all of his unsavory record in the months and years following his connection with the government would be household words. The story is so old enough, and needs only to be told to convince the voter of the utter unworthiness of the man for the presidency. The managers of Mr. Coolidge's campaign are not likely to let the people remain in ignorance of the McAdoo reputation, which is sufficient to blast the political future of a shrewder and better man than Mr. McAdoo.

MARK TIME FOR DAWES.

It is the disposition of the Foreign Debt Refunding Commission to mark time for awhile longer before pressing debtor governments for a refunding settlement of their obligations. It is felt that the Dawes reparations plan may solve the European financial problem, and provide an outlook for the future upon which refunding plans can be negotiated. Pending final action on the Dawes plan, it is likely that no further communication on the debt will come from the United States.

Meanwhile this country will insist that the priority of those foreign obligations shall be fully maintained. In a note to the Jugo-Slav debt mission which recently visited Washington, the commission took occasion to remark that "the United States may feel assured that no action will be taken by your government with respect to any of its indebtedness heretofore or hereafter incurred which will result in placing the United States in a less favorable position as a creditor than it now occupies."

YOUTHFUL AND ELDERLY HEROINES.

From the days of Homer and Helen of Troy until a recent period it was necessary for a heroine of fiction to be possessed of faultless beauty. For almost as long it was necessary for such a heroine to be extremely youthful. The romances of the age of chivalry, regarding even "sweet sixteen" as too old, often made their heroines only 14, and sometimes only 12 years of age, unblushingly imparting to such children the intelligence and psychology of women of 30. In the Victorian era 18 was about the proper age, although the more advanced age of 20 was sometimes daringly ventured upon. So when William Dean Howells a generation ago began to feature American heroines of 28 and 30 years the shock was great, and youthful readers of both sexes marveled at his inexplicable interest in such very mature ladies.

Balzac, however, had departed from the old tradition long before. Happening to fall in love with a lady old enough to be his mother, Balzac threw literary conventions to the winds and featured a well seasoned heroine whenever he saw fit. The ladies of his "Comedie Humaine" are never too old to love and are liable to bow before Cupid at almost any age. One of his mature heroines won a young man from a young girl, at the ripe age of 55. And Balzac found basis for all this in the French of his time and its previous history. At 60 Diane de Poitiers won the love of King Henry II. The court of Louis XIV was seduced by several very fascinating ladies of mature years. Perhaps the most remarkable case in France was that of Ninon de l'Enclos who fascinated three generations of men, retaining her charm almost to her death at 99. The records show that female maturity has disputed with youth for empire in many instances and in no few with complete success, showing that charm may conquer when youth and even physical beauty are lacking.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)
A WISE DENTIST.

I heard a dentist say a very significant thing to a patient the other day.

After removing the tartar from her teeth, scraping the teeth about the margin of the gums, and advising her to use milk of magnesia as a mouth wash, he said further: "Now you should really have no further trouble because you have such a good circulation."

That dentist understood that a regular mouth wash and brushing of the teeth and gums was a very necessary thing, but the big factor in bringing fresh blood to the gums and carrying away the used up tissue, was the circulation of the blood. Now the blood will circulate naturally throughout the body even if you are sound asleep.

However, if you want a real circulation there is only one way to get it, and that is to use your body. The only way you can use your body to stimulate heart action and circulation is by exercise.

Perhaps you've always had the opinion that the only reason people took exercise was to acquire muscular development.

Well, true enough, exercise is the only way one can get strong muscularly, but that is only a part of the story.

The suggestion of the dentist that a good circulation and a clean mouth would prevent pyorrhea, because the blood is not allowed to remain too long in the gums, holds good for every part of the body. Anything that helps the circulation anywhere in the body prevents trouble in that particular region, and therefore insures health there. For instance, if the liver is stimulated to a little stronger action by running, deep breathing, or bending sideways, then the bile is manufactured faster, and the sugar stored away in less time. This means that digestion is hastened, and the extra flow of bile prevents constipation, and takes care of any harmful substances in the intestine. You can follow this to every part.

The lungs will work faster, get rid of waste and take in oxygen to purify your blood.

Your brain will be clearer because the used blood there gets changed often. The extra force to the blood supply will send waste matter to the skin to be thrown away as perspiration.

And your kidneys will be stimulated to do their particular work of clearing out the wastes faster, and more urine will be voided.

So when you walk, play, do housework or take systematic exercise, remember that muscle and strength will be developed all right, but the real boon to that body of yours is the stimulation to your circulation.

After all, you know your heart is the foundation of your entire body, and if it pumps with good force you have the greatest asset you can own in the prevention of illness, and in the enjoyment of health and strength. Only one way to strengthen it. Move yourself.

Hotel Man Talks
To Hi-Y Club

Mr. Johnson Here In The Interest of the New Hotel Gives Interesting Address—Hi-Y Officers for Next Year Elected.

A regular Hi-Y meeting was held at the rooms in the local Y. M. C. A. Wednesday night. Officers for next year were elected and will be installed next Wednesday, when the final meeting of the club will be held. Those elected were Richard Whiston, president; Jefferson Pennington, vice president; Wilbur Tolley, secretary-treasurer.

President Vogt introduced Mr. Johnson, former secretary of a Y. M. C. A. at Washington, D. C., as speaker for the evening. Mr. Johnson is now connected with the Hockenbury system of hotels and is in Kingston helping put across the proposed hotel here.

Mr. Johnson said that he would talk of the six I's of success. These six I's are necessary to win success in anything. The first necessary quality is "Integrity." Without this quality there is no hope of success. No matter what walk of life one chooses, integrity is necessary. A person may have position, money and many other exterior things, but if he lacks integrity he will not get far. A person to succeed must have a reputation of doing what he says. To illustrate, Mr. Johnson told a story of J. P. Morgan. Mr. Morgan lent a man one million dollars, without collateral or any security. The government asked if he considered it wise to make a loan like that. Mr. Morgan replied that he knew that man and knew his character. He would be willing to lend him, rather than lend to some people who had all kinds of security. Integrity of character cannot be bought. It can only be earned by conduct. Arnold Bennett says that conduct is three-fourths of life.

To succeed a man must be industrious. A brilliant man may go to a certain distance without work, but he is finally passed by the fellow who sticks everlastingly at it. Consistent and persistent plugging is necessary and is better than brilliance. When John Ruskin was told of a promising young man, the first question he asked was, "Does he work?" It is a Godsend that we must work. Those men who do not work are the most miserable creatures on earth. Some responsibility in the business world makes us appreciate a vacation.

The third "I" is "Intelligence." This does not mean a high education. Any one can be intelligent. Intelligence is the ability to use information that we have. The person who observes and absorbs all he sees and can use it is intelligent.

"Initiative" is the next necessary quality. The man who can do things without being told to do them. There is much within us that is unknown to ourselves. It is this that enables us to go ahead and to do more. The world is looking today for men of initiative.

The fifth quality is "Intensity." The ability to concentrate and to put the whole mind on the work at hand.

The last quality is "Interest." This is very important, for without interest one cannot travel far. If a person is interested in the work that he takes up then he is on the road to success. A person can also cultivate interest in anything.

Mr. Johnson told a story of a boy who started at the button counter in Wamamaker's and is now buying buttons for a large group of firms. He did this by great effort and interest in his work.

A man with an education should be able to do the right thing when it should be done whether he likes it or not.

Mr. Johnson's address was very interesting and was appreciated. The meeting adjourned there being no discussion.

Ulster Favors A New Bridge

At the Special Election of the Taxpayers of Town of Ulster it was decided to appropriate $18,000 for its share of construction.

Wednesday at the special taxpayers election held in the town of Ulster the proposition of the town raising its share—$16,000—for the construction of a new steel bridge over the Esopus creek in Higginsville, was adopted. Little interest was displayed in the election but twenty votes being cast. Of that number seventeen favored the proposition.

The present bridge over the Esopus creek has been condemned by the state department, and was posted last summer with warning signs by both city and town.

There have been several meetings held between the town board and the board of public works. At the last meeting the bridge plans prepared by County Superintendent James F. Loughran were approved. At that meeting Superintendent Henry Darrow of the board of public works was instructed to build a temporary bridge across the creek as soon as weather conditions permitted.

The bridge will be of steel construction and will cross the creek on the site of the present bridge which will be torn down.

Large Family in Fifty Years

Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, was decisively defeated by Ralph B. Strassburger, millionaire publisher of Norristown, in the race for delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention. King George of Great Britain made his initial appearance as a radio broadcaster when he opened the Wembley Exposition, and thousands of fans on this side of the Atlantic sought to pick up his voice. To show the love of the Italian people for Mme. Eleanor Duse, world famous tragedienne, who died in Pittsburgh, Pa., Prince Caetani, Italian Ambassador to the United States, accompanied the body to New York, on its way to Italy, on behalf of the Italian Government.

Incas Use Coca Leaves

When on Long Jaunts

When the Spaniards first came to the highlands of South Africa they found many strange things being done by the couple of million inhabitants who lived all the way from what is now Ecuador to the northern part of Chile. These people smoked copper, wore cloth, built houses of heavy masonry, embalmed dead bodies and used gold for household cooking, eating and drinking vessels. This last was their undoing, for while they put a value on gold only as something to use like any other metal, the Spaniards prized it as we do and went crazy over it.

These people had a large sheep they used for packing, but it was too small for a riding animal and not very swift so all the swift errands were performed by runners. It is said that the Incas king each day ate fresh fish caught from the sea and hurried to him by relays of fast runners. Incredible records were made by these men, who had been trained from infancy almost to run.

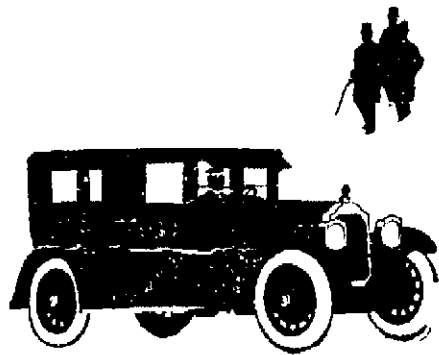

The high altitude develops huge lung power after generations have been bred in it, but for you and me it makes for short-windedness. But the people who are born and brought up in the rarefied air are short and stocky and with very large lungs. They lived in a country ranging from 10,000 to 14,000 feet high with mountains running up at intervals to over 22,000 feet.

All were—and are yet—inveterate users of coca. This is leaves from the tree of the plant from which cocaine is extracted. For long feats of endurance they took a small package of these leaves and constantly kept a waft of them in their mouths wrapped around a small bit of unslaked lime to free the cocaine and other alkaloids contained in the coca leaves.

One American doctor who investigated the subject and wrote a large book on it and a famous American writer (Doctor Monzans) claim that cocaine used in this fashion appears to free great reserves of strength and is not attended with the perilous results following use of the drug cocaine which has not the balancing chemicals found in the entire leaf. Be that as it may, the Indian runners and packers used and still use this leaf when on their long jaunts.—Adventure Magazine.

PACKARD SIX

THE Packard Six remains, fundamentally, the same car that 30,000 owners believe cannot be greatly improved. There are, however, important features that bring it still nearer perfection—notably the four-wheeled brakes and the improved steering gear. Let us demonstrate this new model and explain why it is a far more saving investment than cars costing a thousand dollars less.

Hebrew Language

Owing to the efforts of Ben Yehudah, an enthusiast for Jewish nationalism, the ancient Hebrew is being revived. "Talk language was not spoken even so late as the time of Christ. In those days the inhabitants of Judea spoke Aramaic. For more than forty years Ben Yehudah worked. Besides, all his propaganda in the schools, in the press and on the platform he set to work on a tremendous lexicon or thesaurus in ten volumes, almost as great a work as the great Oxford dictionary, on which a corps of English scholars have been at work for a generation. He died with that work uncompleted, but so far advanced that his disciples can readily finish it. Most of the Jews in the Holy Land now speak Hebrew and are proud to call it their "mother tongue." The British government, which holds a mandate over Palestine under the treaty of Versailles, recognizes Hebrew as an official language and publishes a Hebrew copy of all legal governmental papers.

Wax of Various Kinds

Long and constantly increasing is the list of things for which wax is used. Commercial wax is obtained largely from plants, from mineral oils, such as petroleum, and from bees. Many plants have a thin film of waxy material that covers the leaves and stems to protect them from too rapid evaporation. The paraffin of commerce, so widely used, is obtained from petroleum, shale oil, and lignite. Today petroleum is the chief source, although only certain kinds of oil produce marketable quantities.

In obtaining paraffin from petroleum a freezing mixture is applied, which reduces the temperature of the oil sufficiently to separate it into crystals. Ozonecrute is an interesting wax, found in a solid state in beds of coal or associated bituminous deposits. It is related to paraffin and when pure is of similar color and texture. Beeswax is a wax of very high quality. The comb wax is carefully saved and shipped by the beekeepers to the market. Spermaceti is a white wax of crystalline structure obtained as a solid precipitate from the head oil of the sperm and bottlenose whales, and also to a lesser degree from sharks and dolphin oils.

"Planted"

He had married a fluffy young thing and as time went on grew to detect her homely little pet poodle dog that snapped and snarled whenever he came near. One day Fido mysteriously disappeared and he promptly and generously offered one hundred dollars for its recovery.

"But I thought," said a friend, "you hated that dog like poison?"

"So I did," he replied; "I could not bear it."

"Then why on earth do you offer such a reward for its return?"

"I like to please my wife."

"Well, that may be, but $100 is sure to bring the dog back."

"I think not," he answered, "unless some one may bury it in the garden."—Everybody's Magazine.

Speaking Bostonese

A young, electrical engineer from Boston suffered an injury and was sent to a hospital for treatment, where his accident proved a problem to the attendants.

"Could I have a babe?" he asked one morning.

"There is one in each room," the nurse replied.

Later he made the same request to another attendant, and received the same answer.

"Can I have a babe?" he appealed to the head nurse.

"There should be a Bible in each room," she said.

"Say," he called, desperately, "you don't understand me; I want to get shaved."—Indianapolis News.

SHORTHAND SAVES MILLIONS IN YEAR

System Used in England Invented by Timothy Bright.

Next to the typewriter nothing has helped to revolutionize business so much as shorthand. It must have saved millions of money to business men the world over each year and gained a tremendous increase in revenue for the post office, for whereas formerly a man might spend a whole afternoon dictating three or four letters to a longhand writer, today scores of communications can be taken down in shorthand almost in as many minutes.

The advantages of shorthand do not end here, for we all know how important it is on the editorial side of newspapers, in parliament, in the courts and so on.

Though shorthand plays such a wonderful part in our lives, most people know nothing, or practically nothing, of its fascinating story. How many are aware, for instance, that the ancient Romans employed it with success, or that many pioneers had produced various systems long before Sir Isaac Pitman came upon the scene with his more practicable method?

The system of shorthand used by the ancients probably consisted of contractions of words. The first real shorthand known to England made its appearance in 1588, when Timothy Bright brought his invention before the public. This system enjoyed considerable popularity, and it is said that some of Shakespeare's plays were transcribed from it.

Many other methods of "secret writing," as shorthand was called in those days, made their appearance within the next few years. One, the work of John Willis, was employed by Samuel Pepys, the famous diarist. After Pepys' death his diary had to be transcribed before it could be published.

Charles Dickens, when he was a solicitor's clerk, tried to learn shorthand. He tried a system produced by Gurney and his impressions may be gathered from the fact that he made David Copperfield say that shorthand was "about equal to the mastery of six languages." It was Gurney, by the way, who got shorthand officially recognized. In 1790 he was appointed shorthand writer to the government. A number of his descendants also held the post, and Gurney's shorthand is still used sometimes in parliament.

It was in 1837 that Isaac Pitman came forward with his method of stenography which was destined to win such world-wide approval. His first system was very crude, but in course of time many improvements were made. It is interesting to note that one of those who helped Pitman was Timothy Healy, the present governor general of the Irish Free state.

In a letter sent to the annual festival of the Pitman Fellowship, recently, Mr. Healy declared that he himself had written shorthand for 50 years, and during Sir Isaac Pitman's lifetime had maintained a correspondence with him.

About 1877 he suggested to Sir Isaac that the "Teacher," which in those early days was a rather crude schoolbook, required reforming. Sir Isaac then accepted from Mr. Healy many illustrations for the new edition.

Sir Isaac was, as Mr. Healy declared, one of the greatest men in his century.

Many amusing mistakes are recorded in connection with the transcribing of shorthand notes. Thus Professor Blackie was once made to comment upon the "greasy atmosphere" of Edinburgh, whereas he had actually said "breezy."

The late Lord Carnarvon was once reported to have said: "In these days clergymen are expected to have the wisdom and learning of a journeyman sailor," whereas he had referred to Jeremy Taylor, the famous divine and author.—London Tit-Bits.

Branded

A man who had amassed a fortune by his own efforts liked to annoy his wife by telling credulous acquaintances about fictitious early hardships. Placed next to a dowager at dinner, he was sure to tell the following story:

"I never learned to read or write until I was twenty-one. My principal garment up to the age of twelve was a coffee bag. Down in the mountains where I was raised a brand popular in those days was triple X, and you can see a triple X across my shoulders to this day."

The Wrong Station

Pa came in, adjusted the radio head-piece and settled himself to listen. After a few moments he manifested impatience. He shuffled his feet as if practicing a new dance. He resented more impatience. Ma, not knowing what to make of this performance, observed him with some concern. Finally he hung off the headpiece and started to fling himself out of the room.

"What's the matter, Pa?" asked Ma mildly.

"When I'm looking for crop reports, what do I want with a bedtime story?"

All Stirred Up

A traveler staying for a week and in a little village was telling the oldest inhabitant that he could not imagine how people managed to live in such a dull place.

"Well, zur," said the native, "you should stay here till next week, and then you'd see the whole countryside stirred up."

"And what is going to happen next week?" asked the stranger.

"Flowing," was the reply.

New Private Letters of Edgar Allan Poe

Probably the most interesting Poe letters that will come to light are those that appear in the Century. These letters are to Judge Beverly Tucker of Virginia, and they throw considerable light on Poe's relations with White, the owner of the Southern Literary Messenger. White rescued Poe from a period of bitter poverty when he made him editor of the Messenger. In a little over a year Poe had made both the magazine and himself famous, but White, resenting Poe's lack of respect for his literary judgment, discharged him. Following is an excerpt from one of Poe's first letters to Judge Tucker:

"Your opinion on the 'MS. Found in a Bottle' is first. The tale was written some years ago, and was one among the first I ever wrote. I have met with no one, with the exception of yourself and T. P. Cooke of Winchester, whose judgment concerning these tales I place any value upon. Generally, people praise extravagantly those of which I am ashamed, and pass in silence what I fancy to be praiseworthy. The last tale I wrote was 'Morcella' and it was my best. When I write again it will be something better than 'Morcella.' At present, having no time upon my hands from my editorial duties, I can write nothing worth reading. What articles I have published since 'Morcella' were all written some time ago. I mention this to account for the 'mere physique' of the horrible which prevails in the 'MS. Found in a Bottle.' I do not think I would be guilty of a similar absurdity now.

"In speaking of my mother you have touched a string to which my heart fully responds. To have known her is to be an object of great interest in my eyes. I myself never knew her— and never knew the affection of a father. Both died (as you may remember) within a few weeks of each other. I have had many occasional dealings with Adversity—but the want of parental affection has been the heaviest of my trials.

"I would be proud if you would honor me frequently with your criticism. Believe me when I say that I value it."

"Very resp. & sincerely,
 "Y. oh. st.
 "EDGAR A. POE."

Believed Him

"Who is that?" asked the visitor in Plunkville.

"Uncle Toke Wombat, our weather prophet," explained the native who was doing the honors. "Hey, Uncle Toke! What's the weather gonna be tomorrow?"

Uncle Toke emitted a series of grunts, which the native interpreted. "He says it's gonna rain or snow or something."

"I believe him," declared the visitor.

Dimensions, Please?

Mrs. Smith was doing her shopping, and decided to buy something for herself. She approached a saleslady and said: "I want a dress to put on around the house."

"Very well, madam," said the saleslady. "How large is your house?"

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BEAVER BUSINESS

"It is true," said Professor Beaver, as the Beaver class listened to him and to his advice regarding Beaver Business, "that we are supposed to be very hard workers."

"That is because we accomplish what we set out to do."

"There are some who are always working, always fussing, always getting tired out, but they accomplish little, if anything."

"And no one speaks of their hard work—only of the fact that they seem to accomplish so little."

"Now we have sense about our work. We know that we must build good dams and good homes, but we do not want to change homes. We like to keep the same homes for years and years."

"What is the sense of changing when we are satisfied?"

"Some are never satisfied. They move from place to place and they say:

"Perhaps I will like that better," or "I'll be happy when I get that."

"We do not stay in our homes during the summer, as we know that we must all have vacations if we're to keep well and strong."

"We must leave the homes so they become well aired and so they are nice and fresh when we get back to them."

"This is the healthiest way and we have learned the lesson of good health."

"And Now, Young Beavers, the Class is Over."

one which all good Beavers will teach to those younger than they are.

"We must work hard in the early autumn for several weeks or so and get ready for the long, hard winter."

"We must have plenty of food for the time when food is scarce."

"And we must do our daily chores carefully. We must comb our hair and wash ourselves, for cleanliness makes us feel well and keeps us well."

"But we must rest and we must sleep. We must enjoy life."

"If we worked every minute we'd be all worn out. We wouldn't be getting anywhere either."

"By that I mean that if we worked every minute by the time we were old we'd be too tired out to play."

"Ah, yes, people say, 'Work like a beaver.' That is because a beaver works well, thinks about his work while he is working and so gets it done just right."

"But they are wrong if they think we spend all our time in working."

"Dear me, but they are wrong."

"None can play as a beaver can. I feel sure of this."

"And, Beavers, tell all other young Beavers that these are the Beaver ways."

"They have always been the Beaver ways and I hope they will always be the Beaver ways."

"And now, young Beavers, the class is over, and I feel sure you have all heeded what I have said."

And all the Beavers said:

"Work and think of what we're doing while we're doing it, but never forget to play—oh, we'll never forget to play."

And with great excitement the class was off to begin the play part at once!

Believed Him Guilty

A country school board was visiting a school and the principal was putting his pupils through their paces.

"Who signed the Magna Charta, Robert?" he asked, turning to one boy.

"Please, sir, it wasn't me," whispered the youngster.

The teacher, in disgust, told him to take his seat; but an old tobacco-chewing member of the board was not satisfied, so, after a well-directed aim at the culprit, he said: "Call that boy back; I don't like his manner; I believe he did do it."—Texas Outlook.

Son—Oh, just riding round with some of the boys.

Dad—Well, tell 'em not to leave their hairpins in the car in future.

SOMETHING TO EAT

A dainty salad accompaniment is prepared with the tender centers of white celery, stuffed with a seasoned cream cheese or with a grated cheese softened in hot cream and seasoned lightly with cayenne and any desired seasoning.

Savory Sandwich Filling.—Blend one-half cupful of almonds and brown them in a frying pan with a tablespoonful of oil. Chop fine, season with salt and cayenne, add two chopped pickles, one tablespoonful of chutney, mix well and spread on either bread or crackers with cream cheese and sprinkle with the chopped mixture.

Stuffed Egg Plant.—Parboil a large egg plant, unpeeled, for ten minutes. Let it stand until perfectly cold. Cut in half lengthwise and scrape out the center, leaving the walls an inch in thickness. Chop the pulp fine; add to it half a cupful of melted butter, salt and pepper to taste. Moisten with milk and fill the hollowed halves with the mixture, remodeling up the stuffing. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a covered roaster or poacher, enough water and water around the vegetable to come half way up the sides. When soft cooked transfer to a hot platter, thicken the liquid left in the roaster with browned flour and butter, boil up and pour around the egg plant.

Green Peppers Stuffed With Rice.—Cut a slice from the stem ends of green peppers; lay into cold water after removing the white fiber and seeds. Parboil five minutes, turning so they may be evenly scalded. Fill with minced chicken soup, rice, cold cooked chicken, chopped nuts or any good finely seasoned stuffing. Arrange in a baking pan and bake, basting often with butter and water until the peppers are soft and the filling well-heated through.

Mashed Potatoes.—Boil the potatoes until tender; drain and shake over the heat to dispel all steam. Beat until light, adding butter and hot milk; give another good beating with a strong, large spoon and serve fluffy white and delicious. Do not, when serving mashed potatoes, pack into a dish and press down. Leave light, just as it comes from the spoon.

Your Next Car

Will be this Light-Six, if you learn the truth

WHEN you buy a car in the "thousand-dollar" class, here are some things you should know.

We made a canvass of men who bought rival cars in this class. And we found that 96 in each 100 bought without knowing these facts.

So, for your sake and our sake, we want to present them to you.

Save $200 to $400

Studebaker builds 150,000 fine cars yearly. It builds in model factories, modernly equipped. It has spent $35,000,000 in the past five years on new-day plants and equipment.

By quantity and up-to-dateness it saves large sums per car. A car like this Light-Six, built under ordinary conditions, would cost $200 to $400 more.

11.4% less to run

This supreme quality means lower operating cost. Owners of fleets of cars in this class made audited records to prove this.

They compared 329 cars, running up to 25,000 miles each. And they found that the Studebaker Light-Six cost 11.4% less to operate than the average of its rivals. This includes depreciation. The saving was nearly one cent per mile.

The reasons are these

The Studebaker Light-Six, in its chassis, represents the best we know. In steel and in workmanship it is identical with the costliest cars we build.

Each car in the building gets 32,000 tests and inspections.

Genuine leather cushions, ten inches deep. Unusual equipment. Scores of extra values.

Made by the leaders

This is one of the cars which has made Studebaker the leader in quality cars. Our sales have almost trebled in three years. The trend toward Studebakers has become a sensation.

Last year 145,167 people paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

Back of this car is an honored name, which for 72 years has stood for high ideals.

Behind it are $90,000,000 of assets, staked on pleasing you better than others.

Before you pay $1,000 or more for a car, these are facts you should know and compare. You owe that to yourself.

For instance: It will enable you to look at any car and tell whether it's been cheapened to meet a price or offers true quality.

It will tell you why some cars rattle at 20,000 miles and others don't. It shows one single point in a closed car which measures whether you're getting top or medium quality. The book is free—clip the coupon below.

Zone Ordinance Was Submitted

Alderman Edinger, Chairman of City Zoning Committee, Has Prepared a Tentative One Which Will be Considered by Corporation Council.

A meeting of the city zoning committee of the common council was held Wednesday evening at the city hall, which was attended by Mayor Morris Block and Corporation Counsel James Jenkins. Alderman Urban G. Edinger, of the Ninth ward, chairman of the zoning committee, submitted a tentative ordinance that he had prepared, and after some discussion it was decided to refer it to the corporation counsel and city engineer to examine and report back at a meeting of the committee to be held later.

Alderman Edinger has spent considerable time on the tentative ordinance he had prepared, and studied zoning ordinances adopted in a number of other cities. He has been at work on the ordinance since the first week in January.

It was also decided to have the city engineer's office prepare tentative zoning maps with the proposed residential, business and industrial zones marked which are to be ready for discussion at the next meeting of the committee.

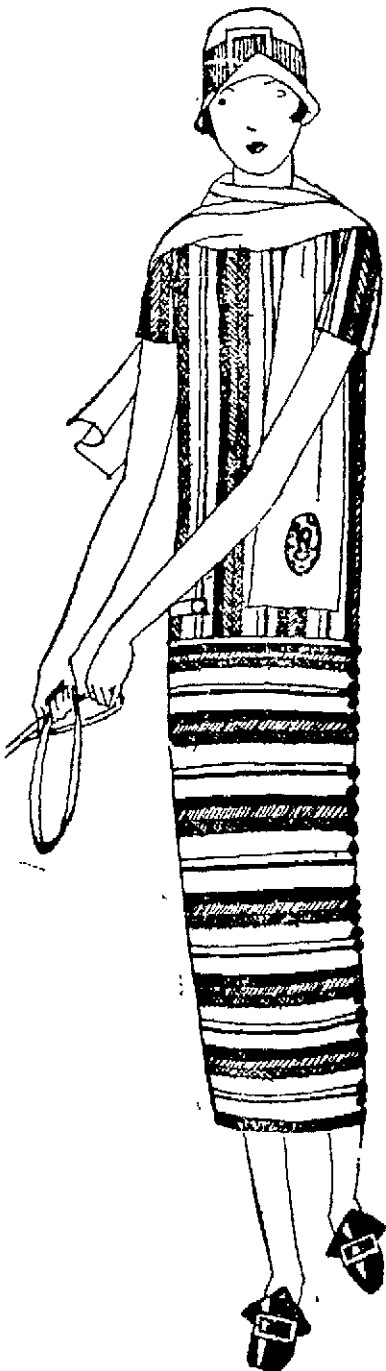

SPORTS CLOTHES THAT SMACK OF INDIVIDUALITY

(By Eleanor Guinn.)

The leopard is probably reconciled to his fate, and surely no longer wants to change his spots, since fashion so thoroughly approves them. The zebra, too, must feel rather set up, for his markings are acclaimed by the smart world, especially the portion interested in sports.

One does not need to be athletic to revel in sports clothes, and the summer ahead promises to be a banner year for sportswear, taking the southern and California resorts as a barometer of women's tendencies. Although it was plaid which came in for all the headlines in fashion stories as they came down the gangplank, we have been less active in following their advice than is usual, possibly because we became involved in intricate stripings which assumed all directions, and sometimes on the same gown.

The model shown indicates a popular preference in the matter of the direction of stripes. While it is traditional that horizontal stripes exaggerate one's width, many of the smartest models this season dare the horizontal, and curiously enough, do not appear to emphasize. The reason for this is unquestionably because the eye is distracted by some detail of the gown which interrupts the line.

Wamsutta Percale sheets washed 100 times show the finely woven texture unbroken after this thorough test. Under the microscope, the threads are still strong, even and uniform.

Makers of Wamsutta Percale Sheets recommend Rinso—

The Rinso suds soak dirt out—with this new soap
you have no hard rubbing

"AFTER giving Rinso a severe test as a laundry soap for washing Wamsutta Percale we cordially endorse it as an ideal soap for washing our sheets," say the makers of Wamsutta Sheets.

"Rinso soaks out the dirt so thoroughly that no rubbing is necessary. This saves the sheet from a great deal of wear.

"Not only is the life of the fabric lengthened, but we are also convinced that Rinso because of its superior cleansing and rinsing qualities, actually enhances the smooth and beautiful appearance of Wamsutta Percale Sheets."

Washing sheets used to be one of the hardest tasks of washday. You rubbed soap into the sheet and then you rubbed the big, heavy sheet up and down on the washboard to get it clean.

TODAY you don't have any more of that back-breaking labor. You let the Rinso soap-suds do this hard work for you.

Always use enough Rinso to get big lasting suds after the clothes are in, for the secret of Rinso's wonderful cleansing power lies in these thick rich suds.

How this new soap works: Rinso dissolves instantly and completely in boiling water. This solution makes the water in your tub soapy all through. It soaks dirt out.

Because it is all dissolved Rinso rinses out thoroughly, leaving clothes snowy white. No bits of soap left sticking to garments when you wash with Rinso!

It is a complete soap in itself—it does the whole wash, whatever your washing methods may be. You need no other soap with it.

Everywhere the progressive American woman is using this labor-saving soap. Already more than a million packages are used every week.

Rinso is made by the makers of Lux—the largest soap-makers in the world—to be just as perfect for the family wash as Lux is for fine things.

A Record of Growth and Development

The Central Hudson System is a good example of the growth and development of the electric power industry — an industry that has a remarkable record, and one that has reached a high state of efficiency.

Starting in 1900 with the historic Edison plant at Newburgh, there has been built up by this management an interconnected system of companies that serve practically every important community in the Central Hudson Valley — from Garrison to Ravena.

The unified operation of these properties; the building up of a great central steam station; the development of water powers; the erection of steel tower trunk lines of transmission throughout the length of the Valley and connecting with important power sources in the Adirondack region and other sections—all this is producing economies and efficiencies not otherwise possible. It has enabled the keeping down of rates in spite of enormous increases in almost every item entering into the cost of service.

Electric service throughout the Valley is being standardized in line with the best practice. Small communities will have the advantage of ample power and light facilities formerly available only in large cities.

Helferich and Mother Killed

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, April 24.—Karl Helferich, financier and leader of the German Nationalists, and his mother were killed in the train wreck near Heilbronn, according to advices from Lugano today. The German consul at Lugano confirmed the deaths.

An unconfirmed report was circulated here that Dr. Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, was among the victims.

General dispatches said there were four American tourists on the Lucerne express and two on the Milan express. These were the two trains that crashed head on. It is understood the Americans escaped injury.

The dead are now estimated 15 and the injured at 20. Thirteen of the twenty are in serious condition.

Dr. Helferich had been in Italy for a short vacation. He was scheduled to make a speech at Milan after his return, but failed to show up. His absence led to an investigation to determine if he was on the wrecked train.

ORIGIN OF "DIXIE" IS TRACED THROUGH BANK

Term Was Applied to Paper Money Issued by Old Depository at New Orleans.

The passing of a famous southern banking institution, through consolidation, has drawn attention again to the origin of the term "Dixie" as applied to the Southland.

The claim that the word came from the name of a man who once lived in New York seems to be set at rest by the records of this institution, the Citizens' Bank and Trust company of New Orleans, La., which has been merged, after ninety-one years of continuous operation, with the Commercial Trust and Savings bank.

Some authorities have attributed "Dixie" to the name of one Dixie, a large landholder and kind-hearted slave owner who resided on Manhattan Island during the latter part of the Eighteenth century, but in New Orleans they take no stock in such a story and point to old chronicles of the Mississippi valley, and to the records of the bank, to disprove it.

In the thirties, America was flooded with "wild-cat" money and counterfeiting was so common that suspicion became fixed on almost all paper money. Through it all, however, the bank notes of the Citizens' commanded the respect of the whole of the Mississippi valley and the remainder of the country as well. In the days before the Civil war the Citizens' notes were printed in French as well as English. The most common denomination was the $10 note, and it bore the Roman numeral "X" and the Arabic numerals "10." But, also, in the middle of the back was printed the French word "Dix" amidst other lettering in French.

The Mississippi river then was the great highway of traffic between New Orleans and the north, and, in the arroy of the river, when a man was headed down South into Louisiana on a trading expedition he was going to "come back with a pocket full of Dixes." From "Dixes" to "Dixie" was an easy step. And the South, particularly Louisiana, became known as "the land of Dixies," or, more briefly, "Dixie land."

It was then that Daniel Emmett, blackfaced minstrel, wrote his jingling song, "Away Down South in Dixie."

Incidentally the song was first published in New Orleans, and by a music house which still is in business on Canal street.

Autos Cause Passing of Street Troubadours

Growth of the use of automobiles has been responsible for many things in many places, but one of its responsibilities in Honolulu is the passing of the street troubadours, so common some years ago.

It used to be a common thing to have these strolling players serenade house after house every night; satisfied to collect a dollar here and a dollar there for their playing. In fact, it was one of the distinctly Hawaiian features of life in Honolulu.

But the increase in the number of automobiles has done away with it. No more do the strolling players scroll. Now they ride around in cars and are satisfied to play for their own enjoyment or that of their own personal friends rather than go serenading from house to house.

And the automobile has also taken away the romantic aspect of the strolling players who seemed so much like wandering minstrels as they walked from house to house with hat in hand in days of old. But in an automobile speeding swiftly from one friend's house to another their charm has vanished, leaving only an aching void in the hearts of the lovers of old Honolulu.

U. S. Army Officers Study to Become Expert Cooks

A class of students consisting of officers of the American army and navy, including one representative of the army of France, is finishing an unusual eleven-month course at the quartermaster corps subsistence school in Chicago.

When graduation day comes next June, according to Capt. E. E. Morgan, these officers will return to their stations in all parts of the country and overseas, qualified as experts in the art of feeding soldiers.

The education of these subsistence students began with the study of the anatomy of food animals, their transportation, slaughter, inspection, and packing.

Much of the time of the class is spent in laboratory work. Virtually every kind of canned food has been analyzed and classified, and there have been comparative studies of many kinds of food preservation.

Bird Crashes Into Tomb

A rock ruffed grouse recently flew through the quarter-inch plate glass window of the mausoleum of the Forest Home cemetery, Greenville, Mich., crashing to its death on the stone flagging. The bird smashed a hole about 14 inches in diameter in the glass. Its neck was broken by the impact.

Baby Drowned in Tub

Forgetting that she had put her baby sister in the bathtub, Fredericka Mason of Palestine, Ill., went to a nearby store for groceries. When she returned home she found the infant was drowned.

Strindberg's Genius

Genius, in the case of Strindberg, is the capacity for dramatizing infinite pains. There is no major ache, whether of psyche or toe, that does not claim its moment of his enthusiasm. Life, to him, is the panorama of a great and encompassing conflict. His tragedy does not so much purge the emotions and leave in its wake the beauty that is ever the requisite of profound sorrow, as convulsive hope, and resolution, and human faith. Where Ibsen is the mocking dramatist of tragedy, Strindberg is the tragedian of mocking drama. He looks on the world as a child looks at the skeleton of some prehistoric monster, simultaneously hest by awe and disbelieved and seeking relief from its bupuzzlement in a nervous and unconvincing laughter.—George Jean Nathan in the American Mercury.

Preparedness

Willie was under orders never to go in swimming. And mother meant to see that he obeyed. So one day she became suspicious.

"Willie, your clothes are wet," she said. "You have been in the water again."

"Yes, mother, I went in to save Charlie Jones."

"My noble darling! Did you jump in after him?"

"No, mother. I jumped in first so as to be there when he fell in."

Wallis Talks To Ulster C. E.

observance of law, and the upholding of the religion of Jesus Christ. Then, addressing the young womanhood before him, Commissioner Wallis said most emphatically, "Young women, the government of our country is upon your shoulders. Every woman who is entitled to cast a vote for president, for members of congress, for local officials, and refuse to cast her ballot is committing a great offense as does any congressman who fails to be present to vote on the questions of state to demand his vote. God's law is for every great interlocking of there must be found a great interlocking benefaction. There is a mighty call today from God for courage, chivalry, bravery, service, and the young men and women of peerless power must get ready to meet the needs of the great day in which we live."

Just touching upon the drug addiction menace, Commissioner Wallis said: "The latest available statistics are very alarming and to form some idea of the amount used in the United States it may best be appreciated by comparison. For instance, Italy uses, one grain of opium per capita per annum, Germany two grains, England three, and France four. The United States does not grow the commercial poppy, coca leaf, but it uses the enormous and incredible amount of 36 grains per capita per annum. India, with a long line of opium addiction, only uses 27 grains."

"If this great amount the United States is using were reduced to morphine and put up one eighth grain medicine doses, it would be sufficient to put every man, woman and child in the United States under its influence for 29 consecutive days. In other words, it would blot the month of April out of the calendar."

"If the people could imagine trains and engines standing on the tracks rusting; every automobile dead; every trolley stalled; every plow motionless in the furrow, every ship in our harbor, waters and ports tied fast; no lights in the home or office; every industry suspended; the whole nation in a state of coma for 29 days, and this in spite of the Harrison narcotic law of 1914, which is the most carefully punitive measure of any nation in the world."

"While immigration is our greatest problem drug addiction is the world's greatest menace as so far as the United States is concerned they are both foreign importations and must be handled at the source of supply. There is no other measure that can relieve us of these two great problems."

"New York city has the largest drug hospital in the world, in the Department of Correction, of which I have charge. There we have 118 self-committed men and boys, mostly young men, taking the cure. They are in their teens and early twenties and 60 per cent of all the men and women in our penal and punitive institutions of New York city are either users or sellers of drugs."

"If this were brought to the understanding of the people at large, the conscience of man, would rise up and smite this great evil and arraign at the bar of public opinion those nations responsible for its production. Then really diving into the immigration question, Commissioner Wallis said he could not see that this matter of quotas of immigrants being allowed the various foreign countries was doing much good when the number of immigrants coming into this country illegally was as enormous as it is. He had learned from Secretary Davis that 1,000 immigrants came daily into this country across the Canadian border in one way and another. But the most astounding statement that he made was in regard to the immigrants, who as 'seamen' find easy entrance into our great ports, especially the port of New York city. Now a seaman is a man who washes decks or polishes brass or washes dishes and makes beds, and a man of very low mentality can do nearly or quite all of these things. As seamen are needed, that is a comparatively easy way of evading the immigration laws, for there is no law to hinder seamen from entering the country. While Commissioner at Ellis Island, Mr. Wallis noticed one of the big ships literally swarming with seamen climbing over the sides into any and every sort of small craft to effect a landing and he called to the captain, 'Captain, for heaven's sake stop those men from coming into this port.' The captain answered, 'Commissioner, an army could not stop them.' And then came the astounding statement that over 500,000 seamen come into the port of New York in a year."

Nor does it seem possible to make our politicians and statesmen understand that this is not an asylum for diseased and criminals of all countries. It is not the numbers of immigrants that is the trouble, but the quality of people. Said the Commissioner most emphatically, "We are going at this whole problem of immigration from the wrong end, absolutely."

"We will have to come to a realization of the necessity of having every man and woman who wants to come to this country, examined on the other side of the water before ever he or she sets foot upon a ship. Now we let them come, and finding them unfit we send them back, and they depart to what? Often with scarce clothing to cover them, no money left, no food, we send them back where they have no homes and no work to do, to unbearable misery, and humiliation, if not actual starvation."

In many cases those foreigners have doubted themselves almost every necessity of life to get to this heavenly country, this new land, and when we send them back it is little wonder that they become devils and manized in their efforts to resist deportation or else commit suicide. "What are we thinking of?" exclaimed Commissioner Wallis. "Every day your government and my government is driving a sharp knife through the hearts of men and women, separating families, wives and husbands; children and parents. Every day is Judgment Day at Ellis Island, when we divide the sheep from the goats; the final day of judgment comes, the last great assize, there surely will be no more heart rending scenes than are now enacted at Ellis Island." Commissioner Wallis reminded his hearers also, that at that final judgment day this country would surely have to answer to God for such treatment of the children of God. Not so much as a yellow dog can have the other side for immigration into this country without a thorough examination and proper passport, yet we let human beings come across the seas, with all of their past lives destroyed, to our very doors and then if we do not want them send them back! Only last week, 41 men and women were deported to Poland and the commissioner pictured their despair as they fought like demons to resist the deportation. And heart-breaking as the story was, he said it was only scratching the surface of the problem.

In talking with a Washington official exercising some power over the problem, Commissioner Wallis was very outspoken in his statement that we must send our doctors and nurses to the other side and make our examinations there. The official said, "Why, do you think those nations would let us into their countries to skim off the cream of their immigrating population for entry into our country? Of course they would not." The commissioner's answer was, "That has nothing to do with the problem. If they will not permit this, then let the entire immigrant bunch stay at home," and the official had to admit the justice of that. Commissioner Wallis was frank to say that he believed that no immigrant should leave the other side until he or she could show a doctor's certificate that he or she was physically fit and decent; and a police certificate that he or she had never been in prison for any serious crime. Just this one thing can save the situation, according to Commissioner Wallis and not a statue, or page of paper, far have proven successful in failures in protecting us from the hordes of undesirable foreigners."

On the Church of the Living God and a firm hold on Almighty God, Commissioner Wallis said that he was coming to us from this day of peril, and Commissioner Wallis was firmly convinced that there was no better possible training for those who shall become our church of the future than the Christian Endeavor Society, teaching our young people loyalty to Christ; loyalty to church; expecting from them a daily reading of the word, and a daily communion with the Father and Christ in prayer. Commissioner Wallis closed his address with the expressed hope that there would be a very large delegation of Ulster county Christian Endeavorers at the Ulster convention to receive the immeasurable inspiration therefrom, and with the wish that the coming spring-time and summer be the happiest and best that those before him had ever spent.

Origin of Safety Pin

The first safety pins were long, slender pins of bronze, characteristic of Italy. Evidently some one one day conceived the idea of bending the body of these pins after putting the pin through the garment, so as to hold it more securely. Later an improvement was made by having a disk formation in the head of the pin, containing several twists of fine wire, which acted as a spring and held the pin in place. The original how pin is said to have been found in graves dating back to the Tenth century B. C. There have been many evolutions of the material used and the shape and style of the safety pin, but it is interesting to note that the primitive and simplest form is the one which has survived and is used at the present time.

Tropical Fish

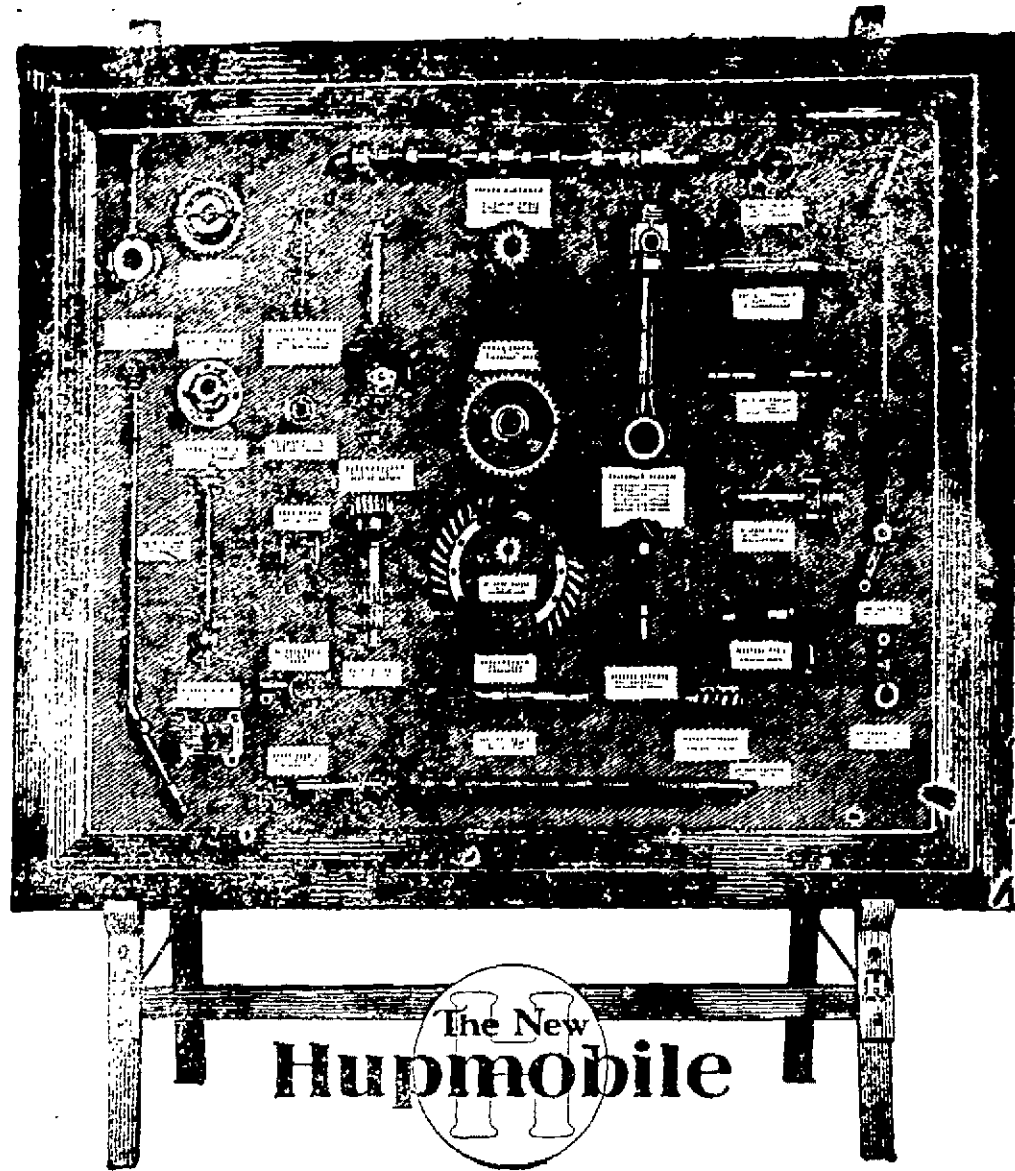

Submarine color photography has given additional evidence for the theory that the gayly colored fishes of tropical reefs wear their gay colors so that they may more easily fade into their environment. They escape larger fish which prey upon them while at the same time becoming hard to be seen by the littler fish upon which they in turn feed. Photographs taken near the sea bottom in these shallow waters have shown the natural background of corals, sponges, sea anemones and other marine growths to be brilliantly colored. The gayly fish merely conform to their background, and their gay colors are another instance of natural camouflage.

Difficult Problem

The "fretful porcupine," as Shakespeare called him, is causing a lot of fretting on the part of forest officials in parts of the national forest reserves. The little animals are reported to have destroyed many of the trees planted in sample plots; and they are making difficult the introduction of yellow pine into the forests of the Southwest. The bark of these trees is tender and succulent, and the porcupines regard it as a delicacy, a taste which is fatal to the young trees. The Department of Agriculture now is seeking a way to preserve both the trees and the porcupines.

Snakes Don't Charm Victims

The popular belief in the power of poisonous snakes to charm their victims into a state of helplessness has no foundation. It is said, however, that under the influence of excitement the birds or small mammals are forgetful of everything surrounding them, and in this state they ventured too near, only to be bit by the hideously almost motionless snake, whose only sign of life consisted in the following of the victim's efforts with the staring eyes and the incessant darting out and in of the rapid tongue.

The New Hupmobile

This Method Protects You

The Hupmobile Parts Display takes the mystery out of the motor car. It gives you the facts that count.

Perhaps you know little, or nothing, of motor car production. When you read on this Parts Display how the Hupmobile is built, and then read, directly contrasted with it, what the more common construction is, you will select your next car with greater care, and greater profit to yourself.

You will also see, more clearly than you have ever seen, why the Hupmobile stands up so well, and why some other cars are a source of continual trouble and expense.

The Hupmobile way of buying a motor car is the sound, business-like way. And it is a liberal education in what makes motor car value.

So, whether you are going to buy a car now, or next year, we advise that you come in soon and study the Hupmobile Parts Display.

BETTER care of the health of children during the first and second years of their life will do much to decrease the death rate and increase the average span of life in the United States in the opinion of Dr. Herbert Old, assistant medical director of the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia.

Even though the past twenty years have witnessed great strides in the preservation of infant life, remained to be done in this field. The pre-natal and pre-school periods in the child's life offer great opportunities, he said, in the campaign against death.

"Preventive medicine of the future will consist largely of helping the healthy to remain healthy," Dr. Old declared. "This means beginning the fight for health before the birth of the child and continuing it throughout life. Much emphasis has already been placed on the care of the child during its first year but not enough during the second twelve months. Tonstis and adenoids are the chief trouble makers.

It is during the second year when the diet changes that intestinal troubles are likely to develop."

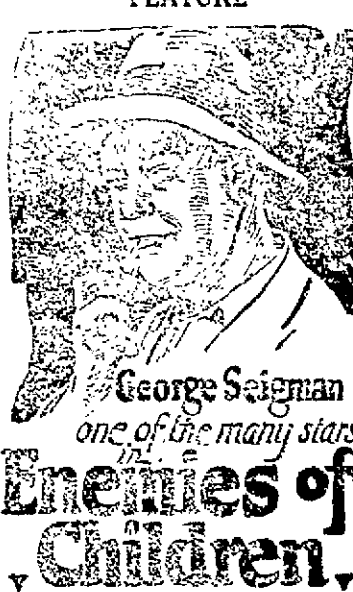

The Provident physician said that a comparison of the height and weight of young children with those given for respective ages on standard health charts was a good guide for the average mother.

"The child should be weighed without any clothes and at the same hour of the day. Weigh not oftener than once in two weeks, nor less than once a month. Measure them every three months. The gain should be constant, save during some acute illness, and a failure to gain in four weeks should be called to the attention of a physician."

"A white child born to-day has an expectation of about 55 years of life. Twenty years ago he was expected to live only 45 years. If all known preventive measures of disease were put into effect, the average span of life would be increased to 65 years."

VILLA RISKS CHAMPIONSHIP TITLE.

PANCHO VILLA AND FRANKIE GENARO

Pancho Villa, Filipino world's champion flyweight, has been matched to fight Frankie Genaro 15 rounds to a decision at the new Nostrand Athletic Club in Brooklyn, N. Y., early in June. Genaro has won two popular verdicts over the champion in no-decision fights, and many predict he will lose his title in their next meeting.

CLAIMS MOON IS CHILD OF EARTH

Scientist Says It Was Part of New Zealand.

London.—The secretary of the Royal Society, in his discourse at the Royal Institution, has made another notable contribution to astronomical theory.

According to the well-known nebular hypothesis of Laplace it was supposed that the solar system was originally a very extended rarefied gaseous mass—what we now call a nebula, though Laplace had no knowledge of the actual existence of nebulae—and that, as it contracted through gravitation, it threw off successive rings of matter from its edge which ultimately condensed into the planets.

Theory Long Under Suspicion.

This theory has been under grave suspicion for some time and Doctor Jeans gave what appears to be conclusive reasons for finally rejecting it. He has previously shown that stars are probably born in a manner very similar to that imagined by Laplace, but smaller bodies, like the planets, require quite a different explanation.

A discussion of the various possibilities leads to the conclusion that, so far as our present knowledge goes, there is only one method left for their origin, and that is the disturbance of the sun in its infancy by the close approach of another sun. The gravitation attraction of the visitor would draw matter out of the sun by tidal action, and this matter would finally condense into planets.

Such an event would be exceedingly rare in the history of the universe, owing to the great distances separating the stars from one another, and this consideration, coupled with the fact that at least half of the stars appear to be double or multiple suns, makes it very probable that our solar system is almost a unique structure. Science is tending to the conviction that our earth may be the only inhabited body in space.

Torn Away in South.

Prof. W. H. Pickering has been extending his study of the mode in which the moon was separated from the earth, and he believes that when that monstrous birth took place 7,000 million years ago the earth was not liquid but solid, and had a period of rotation, a day, of three to four hours. The moon tore itself away in the south; probably the northern part of New Zealand was the last point of contact.

Then three-quarters of the earth's surface to a depth of 85 miles was carried away in a trailing mass of ruins. New Zealand was just saved. From a region by the Straits of Gibraltar diametrically opposite, another piece of the earth's surface stretching out into the Atlantic almost necessarily followed the rest, and a ring of debris surrounding the earth and analogous to the rings of Saturn was thus formed. The portion torn from the Atlantic was possibly some 1,000 miles in diameter.

May Day to Be Festival Day for U. S. Children

New York.—The President of the United States, the governors of all the states, together with city officials and ministers, as well as millions of fathers and mothers, are to unite on May day this year in dedicating the 35,000,000 children of America to health and happiness.

Headquarters for the great undertaking, which is under the auspices of the American Child Health Association, have been established at 370 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

Led by officials of the association, among whom are many of the leading American authorities on social problems, May day will be observed in New York and all over the country as a festival day for children, with special emphasis on health. President Coolidge, in a cordial letter, gave his approval to the plan.

U. S. Bluejackets Now See Movies on Cruises

Los Angeles, Cal.—When the battle fleet sailed from San Pedro for maneuvers in the Caribbean, it took along a four months' supply of motion picture films, including the latest releases.

Before leaving San Pedro each ship was given 12 complete shows for the trip by the fleet movie exchange officer, who distributes his films from the flagship Procyon. At regular intervals during a cruise the exchange collected and redistributed the pictures.

The navy department established its own film exchange some time ago. There now are complete exchanges, four on the Pacific coast, one each in Manila and Honolulu and one floating exchange which accompanies the fleet on voyages.

The exchange officer supplies a vessel with enough films for a show a day.

Pulverized Coal

The experiment of using pulverized coal was made about 45 years ago, when it was tried as a fuel for heating the kilns in which the raw materials for making portland cement were burned. Boys Rule Schoolmasters
Many of the communists recently arrested and placed in internment camps by the German authorities were schoolmasters, and their "discipline" has been provided for in a way which suggests that their captors are not entirely deficient in humor. London Answers reports.

The schoolmasters were collected and placed in a special group, which was then placed under the orders of a number of boys belonging to aristocratic families and chosen from among the internment's own pupils.

One consequence is that a few of the younger generation in this country are now beginning to believe that Germany is not so bad a place, after all.

Mrs. M. F. Luther entertained the old and new consistory men and their wives on Saturday evening. A royal good time was indulged in and it was at a late hour when the gathering broke up. All wished their hostess a happy Easter and hoped there would be many more such social times in the Reformed Church parsonage.

The Easter services in the Reformed Church were a fitting climax to the week of special services held by the pastor, the Rev. M. F. Luther, and were attended by large audiences, both morning and evening. The music was especially beautiful and delightful.

Americans Are Largest Chair Users of World

Americans are becoming the biggest chair users among nations, says a bulletin of the national foreign trade council.

Like its user, the American chair is constantly on the move, and to make it strong enough to withstand its riding, this chair now passes through 50 operations in its building. More care is taken with it than any other piece of furniture we make.

The chair, commonly regarded as stationary, may travel thousands of miles and meet many adventures in its lifetime, according to the national foreign trade council, which has taken the chair as an astonishing illustration of the international character of trade.

Two chairs that do not travel are St. Peter's chair at Rome, dating from the Sixth century, the most famous of ancient chairs; and the world's largest chair, placed as a monument near the railway station at Gardner, Mass.

The number of old and new chairs in the United States is estimated at upwards of 100,000,000, with three to four million annually manufactured. We are more favored than the European peoples of before the Sixteenth century; until that time chairs were used only by kings or the nobility, and common people stood or sat on the floor.

The ancient chair was built of heavy carved and gilded woods, and covered with costly stuffs. The Egyptian chairs were often made of ebony and ivory. Little used or moved, they lasted.

Taking its average life at ten years, and considering its daily shiftings by a lively people, the travels of the American chair in the home or office have been counted at a minimum of 130 miles. Its movements to other houses or offices, or to other vicinities, add many more miles. The travels of an American rocking chair have been placed at 442 miles. The lazy rocker, however, is passing out of use.

Wood "Wool" House Lining

Household fuel bills can be cut from a quarter to a third, it is claimed, by insulating the walls of the home with a fireproof "wool" made from waste lumber. The material is said to be almost as effective an insulator as pure wool, which, of course, is too costly for building purposes.

The insulator is a flexible blanket made of spruce lumber waste cemented together and packed between two sheets of asphalt-lined, tough water-proof paper. The waste is chemically fireproofed first, and then dried by fans and steam pipes. Next it is ground by machines, cemented, and after drying, is packed between the paper sheets. The finished product is said to be light, flexible, and easy to apply and to accommodate itself to shrinkage or vibration of the building. —Popular Science Monthly.

Swallowing Exhibit A

In "Anecdotes of Bench and Bar" Mr. A. H. Englebach tells the following story of an attorney's unfortunate juggling with the evidence:

Peter Burrows, a well known member of the Irish bar, was on one occasion counsel for the prosecution at an important trial for murder. Burrows had a severe cold and opened his speech with a box of lozenges in one hand and in the other the small pistol bullet by which the man had met his death. Between the pauses of his address he kept supplying himself with a lozenge. But at last in the middle of a highfalutin period he stopped. His chest heaved; his eyes seemed starting from his head, and in a voice tremulous with fright he exclaimed:

"Oh! Gentlemen! Gentlemen! I've swallowed the bullet!"

"Prince Rupert's Drops"

"Prince Rupert's Drops" is the name given to tadpole-shaped pieces of glass, formed by melting the glass and allowing it to drop into cold water. If the point of the tail of one of these be broken off, the whole will at once shiver to pieces with a loud report.

Owing to the sudden cooling, the particles have not had sufficient time to arrange themselves in a stable manner, and hence they fly asunder as soon as the structure is broken. These curious drops are commonly supposed to have been discovered by Prince Rupert, the grandson of James I. of England, but Faraday says that they were simply brought by him into England in 1660.—Detroit News.

Idolized

"It says here, 'One of the idols most revered by heathen is a figure of a woman, seated, resting her chin in her hands.'" said Mrs. Farr, reading from a book.

"Which proves they are about the wisest people on earth," suggested her husband.

"How so, Orrin?"

"Well," said Mr. Farr, with emphasis, "because they make a deity of a woman who has sense enough to give her chin a rest."—Pathfinder.

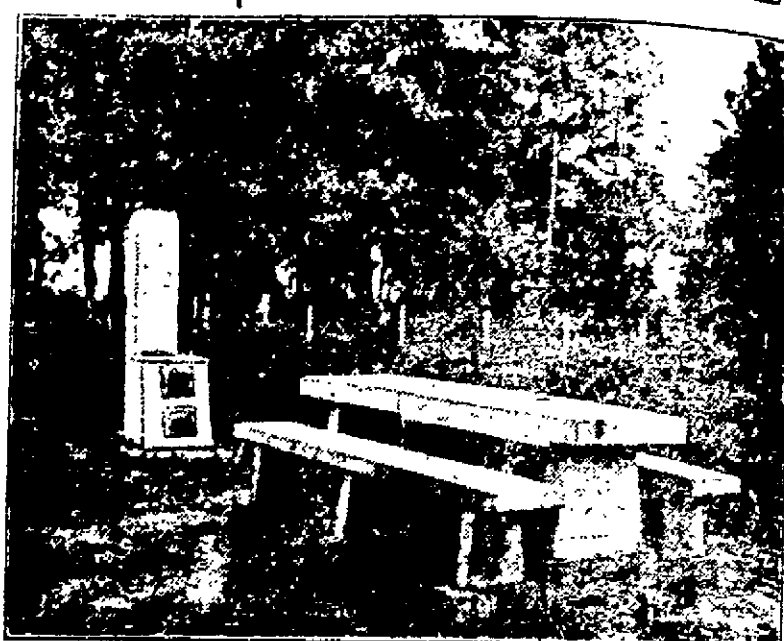

Reminded Him of the Song

A pun perpetrated by Comyns Carr is so good that it is good. He was doing on a train between Southampton and Waterloo when, as they passed through a town of jerry-built monstrosities, he suddenly sat up and exclaimed: "Good heavens, what is this?"

A friend replied mournfully, "Woking."

Carr lay back again and shut his eyes, murmuring: "If this be Woking, let me dream again."

MOVEMENT TO PROVIDE BETTER CAMP SITES

Concrete Benches and Stove.

With the constant increase in tourist traffic throughout the country, which has followed the great advance in the paving of main-traveled roads, there has come a movement to provide better camping sites for these travelers—sites which will be improved by permanent methods so that they will give the maximum of service from one year to another. Tourists' camps have become as much a matter of civic pride as good streets, modern buildings or beautiful parks. Concrete has been found suitable for many purposes in the improvement of tourist camps, because of its

All Set for Boxing Program

At Local Armory Tomorrow Night—Ladies Will be Admitted Free—Reserved Seats Still on Sale.

Barney Williams, matchmaker and referee for the exhibitions to be held at the local armory on Friday evening under the auspices of Batteries E and I, has announced to the local authorities that he has been carefully watching the work of the contenders that will perform at the local show and has assured them that the program here will come up to, if it does not pass, any of the shows he has put on in any of the armories in the state.

Ladies will be admitted to the exhibition free of charge, reservations being made for them in the balcony. The adjutant general of the state has recently issued a special order strictly forbidding smoking in the armories where boxing exhibitions are to be held and a large number of members of both of the local batteries under command of Lieutenant H. A. Keator will be on hand to see that this order is complied with as well as to see that there is no disturbance and also to properly take care of the people who have reserved seats and see that they are properly placed so that there will be no disorder in the finding of any seats.

The seats for the exhibition have been placed on sale and any seat can be reserved until the night of the contests by either applying at the armory or phoning 292. So far there has been no local boxing talent that has applied for enlistment in order to put on a bout, but it is thought that all the local talent is waiting to see the class of fighters they will be expected to meet. The local authorities desire that several of the local boxers sign up with the batteries so as to show the rest of the state that Kingston also has some men who can qualify in the pugilistic world.

The armory is decorated and all the minor details have been cleared up and everything is in readiness for the opening bout.

BATTERY E PRACTICES TONIGHT AT ATHLETIC FIELD

The manager of the Battery E baseball team has called a practice for this evening at the Athletic Field at 6:30 o'clock sharp. This will be the last workout before the practice game Sunday afternoon at Port Ewen, so all the members of the team and those desiring to try out for the team are requested to be present this evening and report to the manager.

The baseball team has been practically formed and but very few berths are left so any man who has not as yet shown any of his ability along the baseball line will be given the last chance to try out this evening.

The team has some very fast teams backed already and expects to add other fast teams who desire to play them.

The Kelly All Stars also have a game booked with the soldiers for Sunday afternoon, May 4th.

The manager of the E Battery team has been informed that Battery I has been quickly practicing and as long as the other battery is forming a team Battery E is desirous of playing the "buddies," and decide which team is superior. It has been rumored that Battery I is getting in shape to play E Battery for a feed and the matters of the game are left up to the manager of the Battery I team.

Pirates Hope to See Cooper Back in Form

Wilbur Cooper, Pittsburgh, was one of the biggest pitching disappointments in the National league last season. Counted upon to keep the Pirates in the running, Cooper failed completely. He lost more games than any other hurler in the league. This year Pittsburgh expects much better assistance from its star of two campaigns ago. Should he return to winning form the Pirates' fight for top honors will be greatly enhanced.

NEW FIRST SACKERS ALSO CAN HIT PILL

Majority of Stars Last Year Well Over .300 Mark

In the olden days a first baseman couldn't hold a place on a big league team unless he knocked the ball over the fence every so often, and, surely, he must be a bona fide .300 hitter. Cap Anson, Roger Connor, Dan Brouthers, Al McKinnon, Otto Shornberg, Dave Orr, Ted Larkin, Perry Werden and Jack Doyle were the popular type of first sackers during the '80s and early '90s. All were powerful batters, but rather slow on the paths, barring Roger Connor who, for a large man, was exceedingly fast on the base lines.

In 1887 every first baseman in the National league batted .300 or better. This is the only instance in major league baseball where all the guardians of the initial sack registered the mark of .300 in batting.

Last season the first basemen working in the circuit ruled over by Ben Johnson came within one, or five points, of producing eight of the regular first basemen who hit .300 individually or collectively. Slater, Pipp, Hauser, Sheeley, McInnis, Burns and Blue came under the wire at a .300 clip. Judge, of Washington, was the only one who lagged, and he had a mark of .295.

In the National last season only three of the regular first basemen hit as first sackers are supposed to hit. Jake Daubert, Kelly and Grimes are the only regulars to live up to traditions. Rookie Bottomley, of the Cardinals, was well within the .300 circle but he played in only thirty games.

Archdeacon Is Fast

"Archy" Archdeacon of the White Sox, who came to the Chicago White Sox from the Rochester International and is to be used as a regular with the Sox this season. Archdeacon is regarded as the fastest man in baseball and holds the record for circling the bases. He had one of the highest batting averages in the International league last season. Several years ago he was up before the Boston Braves but was sent back for more training.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES

Our Mr. Ruth emerged from the depths yesterday and socked a single, double and home run, his second of the season, during the course of the Yankees' 13 to 4 route of Howard Ehmke and the Boston Red Sox. Previous to his outburst, our hero had gone to the plate on ten consecutive occasions without getting a hit.

The Cubs made merry at the expense of the St. Louis Cardinals and won as they pleased, 12 to 1. Pfeffer pitched the first two innings and they were a great plenty.

Not wishing to prolong the agony beyond the bounds of human endurance, Dave Bancroft, new Brave manager made a personal matter of defeating the Phillies 3 to 2, in the fifteenth inning of the Boston inaugural. David's single was the third of the inning off Couch.

Speaker's double, with two on, brought the Indians from behind in the tenth to a 6 to 5 decision over the Tigers. The tribe also came up from the rear to tie the score in the ninth after two were extinct.

The Browns won a free for all from the White Sox, 9 to 5, clubbing Leverage with consistency and enthusiasm. Pruet had one career inning, the fifth, in which the Sox scored all of their runs.

Hold scoreless for six innings, the Athletics fell upon one Speece in the seventh, drove in six runs and beat the Senators 6 to 4.
